Notice the STATE OF OREGON, a fictitious entity formed by semantic deceit and operating in fraud, provides a hint as to the justification used to unlawfully exist. In general, it is the opinion of the editor of the scannedretina.com, that “Government services,” have been unlawfully converted from original public institutions and agencies created by the people for the agents of these public institutions to perform the work of the people. However, unscrupulous members of our respective societies have seen fit to commit treason against their neighbors who trusted them and elevated them to high office...a position of trust.

So much for their honor...

In a word...HONOR!

Dear Laura,

You are convincing me that the Oregon State Police have no way of knowing what the Legislative Assembly has authorized them to do. Please write to tell me if this is your intent. If such is not your intent, I wish to know exactly how the Oregon State Police respond to the mandate issue by the Legislative Assembly, so that I can make a proper request for records. I want to see that the Oregon State Police are doing what the legislature says they're going to do. I am not asking for records as an ignorant man.

I will confide to you that what I understand is that the Office of Legislative Counsel is delegated the task of making those who need to know, aware of any new laws after a legislative session. Admittedly, this is a broad and general awareness, with the potential for a lot of holes. But I am fairly clear about public records being anything having to do with "the people's business". That certainly is what statutes are, notwithstanding your assertion that I can look them up myself! The question that pops up is why would those who have been recently proclaimed as sovereigns by the President of the United States normally have any business with or knowledge of the statutes? We, the sovereigns, have delegated the law making authority to the Oregon legislature. Laws, or the evidence that laws have been enacted, "statutes", have relevance to many entities, each of which is responsible for knowing what the law is, the regulated class, as well as the enforcers.
Ignorance of the law is no excuse is a tune with a familiar ring. So you have raised the question, Where do the Oregon State Police routinely get their knowledge of the law, if not from Dexter Johnson, directly or indirectly? You have asserted that what each Oregon State Trooper, not to mention the overhead, who swore under penalty of perjury to support the constitutions, is not in possession of these things he has sworn to support. Support of the constitutions is a day in and day out function of law enforcement personnel. The constitutions describe the rights of the people, because the people took the initiative to write them up in this form. Are you saying that the Oregon State Police have no access to these documents which guide the day to day functioning of public servants who have sworn to protect the people, and their rights?

Perhaps I have discovered the reason why I was somehow compelled to connect with you for the purpose of describing the true function of a "driver license". Is it possible that no one in the Oregon State Police actually knows what he or she is doing? There is business for me to bring to the Superintendent's desk, and I did offer you an alternative to answering this request for records... arrange an appointment for me with your boss, but I had no idea that a part of what he needs to know, is what the statutes say a Trooper is supposed to be doing. Can I be reading you correctly?

Let me try once more, and if you have already told me all there is for me to know, I will talk to the legislature about repealing ORS 181. You, the delegated voice for the Oregon State Police, which means, including the Superintendent, are requested to tell me in statutory terminology (sixth grade reader level) what the delegated duty of the Oregon State Police is, with regard to "traffic" law enforcement. Do Troopers properly ticket anyone other than "a firm, corporation or other organization" as a "person" defined in Statutory Construction and the Oregon Administrative Procedures Act. Can anyone other than "a firm, corporation or other organization" and of course the "sole proprietor"/"individual" properly obtain a "privilege to drive"... "in this state"? And if a housewife who is going to the store in her car encounters a Trooper, can he hold her to the terms implied on her "license", if she was not fully informed, or deliberately misled (defrauded) by elements of the DMV customer service line, who just wanted he money?
Do you know that "in this state" means all places within the exterior boundaries of Oregon, owned by or ceded to the United States? Do you know that "United States" is defined as the District of Columbia and outlying possessions and territories? Do you know that the "State of Oregon" is a territory of the "United States"? Do you know that all the lines drawn in the mode of a map are not really there, on the ground, but exist only in the minds of men or "persons"? Do you know that a zone improvement plan, "zip", as in "zip code", means that the imaginary lines designate a "territory" of the "United States"? Do imaginary lines mean that everyone living within a space bounded by the imaginary lines is a "United States citizen"? Hint, there are many "Oregonians" who live in the same spaces. Do you, personally, believe that public school students have been provided the instruction required by law at 336.057 and 336.067 (courses in constitutional studies) such that all graduates know what's going on in Oregon and "in this state"? Can graduates ("graduate" is a term used with caution herein, because if not provided the courses required by law, can any human being truly be said to have "graduated") who became Oregon State Police be said to be legitimate high school "graduates"?

Each of the questions above needs to be answered by an Oregon State Police person. And why is this? For the simple reason that all free governments are founded on the authority of "the people", and we need to know that the institutions that we have authorized are up to snuff. This is all from the first sentence of the Oregon Constitution. Therefore, I demand to know if the people have a legitimate institution in the Oregon State Police.

From what you have written so far, all I can conclude is that we, the people, are being abused on a routine and ongoing basis by Troopers who do not have the education required by law to have graduated from high school.

Please make sure to provide the probable cause to deprive me of right to get answers from Oregon State Police Officers, a statement of what the "appeal process" looks like (it's not on the face of the doc), and the time frame during which the sanction is to continue. The absence of these items from the face of the doc give rise to my suspicion that the Oregon State Police is engaging in "Racketeering" as described at ORS 166.715 et seq.

I would like to get that which you say you can reproduce for $25. Will you accept Federal Reserve Notes, the face value of which equals 25?
